Preface

This book offers a full repertoire for Black based on the Taimanov move order 1.e4 c5 2.♘f3 e6 3.d4 cxd4 4.♗xd4 ♗c6! 5.♗c3 ♖c7.

The Taimanov is particularly effective against the English Attack and early kingside pawn storms. However, the fianchetto 6.g3 and the Classical System with 6.♗e3 a6 7.♗e2 pose certain problems. I propose to meet them with the Sheveningen set-up ...d6. Thus we take the best of two different worlds.

In 2014 I wrote The Most Flexible Sicilian with Delchev. It was based on my coauthor's repertoire, with a focus on the Kann (without ♗c6). On the opposite, I have always preferred the Scheveningen set-up whenever possible. The biggest problem there is to avoid the Keres Attack and the system with f4, ♖f3. The Taimanov move order is perfect for that aim.

My new book practically does not overlap with The Most Flexible Sicilian or Pavlidis' The Sicilian Taimanov as I recommend other lines, which are better or keep more tension, in my opinion.

I have been a devoted Sicilian fan all my life, and I have played at least 10 000 blitz games starting with 1.e4 c5 2.♘f3 e6. Since a good half of them featured 3.c3, 3.g3, 3.d3 or other anti-Sicilians, I included these lines in the book.
